Washington D.C. – Farmers and Families First today released the following statement from Dan Conston, president of Farmers and Families First, following today's passage of the 2018 Farm Bill by the U.S. House of Representatives:

"Farmers and Families First is encouraged by the U.S. House of Representatives' passage today of the 2018 Farm Bill, which will deliver much needed economic relief to farmers across the country. This is a stressful time of year for farmers, and they need job stability and income certainty now more than ever.

"We look forward to reviewing the Senate version of the bill, and we hope that Washington will continue working to advance policies beneficial to America's rural communities.
